“In my work, I’m drawn to the way light brings intensity and emotion to ordinary subjects, imbuing the everyday with a sense of mystery and drama. I may pass the same scene a hundred times without noticing it and then happen by one morning when the light is coming in from a new angle, and suddenly everything about it is transformed. I create works in which this alchemizing power of light is at play—inviting viewers to consider everyday subjects with new eyes.”

“Day and Night” an exploration of light.

Workshop description:

Good use of light and shadow can turn your paintings from ordinary into extraordinary. Light has a special way of bringing magic to a painting. This two-day workshop will feature both a daytime scene and a night scene.

Bring your work to the next level! Using a limited palette of mainly transparent colors students will learn about shadows, light sources, adding glow and drama, and designing with light. Lynn provides handouts, reference materials, and lots of personal attention.
